PRIVATE EXPERIENCE / ENGLISH

Atacama by Bicycle

A bicycle outing with a route selected before departure, based on your experience and physical condition. The various available options differ significantly in terms of distance and physical demands; this description does not group them all into a single, uniform route.

Your itinerary

Choosing your route

We determine whether you are interested in exploring the oasis, the canyons, or a more athletic, sport-focused route. Each option specifies the distance, terrain type, elevation change, and level of support provided; a mountain descent, for instance, requires different preparation than a leisurely ride through the ayllus (local traditional communities).

Fitting and practice

We check the bike size, brakes, helmet, and your riding position. The guide will explain how to navigate the route and lead a short warm-up/familiarization session before you set off.

Cycling and observing

We alternate between cycling segments and breaks for water and photography. The terrain may include sand, gravel, and slopes, so the pace is adjusted according to the chosen route.

Conclusion

We finish at the designated location and return the equipment. Details regarding return transportation and meals are specified at the time of booking; the e-bike excursion through "Las Cornisas" (The Ledges) is a unique, specialized experience.
