PRIVATE EXPERIENCE / ENGLISH

Pili · Acamarachi

Pili, also known as Acamarachi, is a high-altitude mountaineering objective that includes an approach and an overnight stay. The itinerary is prepared based on the group's experience and a specifically agreed-upon ascent logistics plan.

Your itinerary

Defining the ascent.

Before booking, we review your mountaineering background and acclimatization status. The technical program must outline the approach, camp locations, route, elevation gain, and estimated timing for the chosen path.

Approach and overnight stay.

We arrive at the designated support location to rest and eat. Personal and collective gear is checked before setting off for the mountain.

Ascent day.

The guide leads the climb, continuously assessing altitude, pace, and weather conditions. A turnaround point is determined with sufficient time to ensure a safe descent, even if the summit goal must be postponed.

Descent and departure.

We return to the camp or support point and continue by vehicle as per the program. Post-climb recovery meals and transportation are coordinated based on the actual schedule.

DURATION

Program includes an overnight stay at a support camp.

DISTANCE / ROUTE

Specific metrics to be confirmed.

EFFORT

High-altitude mountain environment; advanced preparation required.

MEALS

A meal, water, and rationing plan is defined in the proposal; collective and personal gear requirements are identified.

TRANSPORT

Hotel pickup and drop-off in San Pedro (depending on location). Private transfers with stops coordinated by the guide.

PREPARATION

Do not use data from other ascents as a reference for the Llullaillaco expedition. Booking requires an agreed-upon technical program and acclimatization plan.