Láscar

A one-day ascent in the vicinity of the Láscar volcano, subject to access authorization and the volcano's current conditions. This program requires prior acclimatization and a consensus within the group regarding the decision to turn back.

Your itinerary

Preparation and access

We review the route authorization, equipment, and acclimatization to altitude. The approach by vehicle reaches the designated starting point for the hike; access is not guaranteed on any given date.

Ascent

We hike across volcanic terrain, taking short breaks to hydrate and manage physical exertion. The guide sets a pace that ensures the descent can also be completed within the scheduled timeframe.

Authorized objective

The approach to the high point is limited to the permitted area and actual conditions. Volcanic activity, wind, or the group's physical state may necessitate modifying or canceling the objective.

We return to the vehicle and head back to San Pedro. Additional stops for sightseeing are included only if they are part of the itinerary and do not compromise the return trip.
