PRIVATE EXPERIENCE / ENGLISH

San Bartolo · Deeper Territory

This excursion connects the mining landscape of San Bartolo with Yerbas Buenas and the Rainbow Valley (Valle Arcoíris). This route features trails, river crossings, and heritage sites, with several opportunities to step out of the vehicle and explore the human and geological imprints left on the landscape.

Your itinerary

Valle de la Paciencia (Valley of Patience) and Piedra de la Coca

We depart from San Pedro, traveling along the valley trails. Our initial exploration of the landscape includes the Piedra de la Coca and the history of these ancient routes, before venturing deeper into a terrain defined by rock formations and ravines.

San Bartolo and its mining legacy

The visit covers historical mining remnants and designated observation areas. Access to private land, river crossings, and any interactions with local hosts are coordinated in advance; the presence of any specific individual cannot be guaranteed.

Viewpoints, river crossings, and landscapes

The journey continues through marked changes in terrain toward the area surrounding the Salado River and Yerbas Buenas. Stops along the way allow for the observation of various geological materials and an understanding of the relationship between movement, water, and human activity.

Yerbas Buenas and Arcoíris

We explore areas featuring petroglyphs and the valley's colorful rock formations. The guide explains the connection between geology and rock art; afterward, we return to San Pedro via the planned route, with breaks for meals scheduled throughout the day.
